

What They Don't Tell You About AGING SKIN

By Karen Hall

Most of us believe that aging is just a natural part of life. It's just inevitable. To some extent this is true but there are a number of things that can slow down the process and allow you to look your best at any age.

The Aestheticians at That Elegant Touch recently attended a seminar hosted by Jan Marini on anti-aging. We would like to share with you some of the exciting facts we have learned.

There are several factors that effect aging. Heredity—bone structure, intrinsic or biological aging—loss of substance and inflammation and extrinsic aging—sun damage. 95% of what most people perceive as inevitable aging is caused by sun damage. Most people incur this damage before the age of ten.

Now for the good news. This damage can be prevented and or successfully addressed with medically based topical skin care.

Jan Marini provides a skin care system that is professionally managed and delivers measurable results. Jan Marini has spent the last thirty-five years researching and developing the most cutting edge ingredients for anti aging, be it stabilized Vitamin C for collagen rejuvenation, Glycolic Acid for refining course texture, controlling acne and reducing redness or lash and hair conditioners with patented ingredients that stimulate growth without harmful side effects. These are just a few of the exciting products in this line.

There is truly something for everyone and every concern. Let us at That Elegant Touch help design a custom program for you so you can see maximum results for your skin.
